Grand Jury Urges Building Repairs

15 INDICTMENTS SET; FOREMAN IS J. B. JOHNSON

Repairs to the Elba Court House and jail were recommended in the final report of the County Grand Jury returned before Judge Ellis S. Paul Tuesday after being in session two days. John B. Johnson, farmer, Rt. 2, Elba was foreman.

Needed repairs were listed as windows in the Grand Jury Room, brickwork on fire mantle in the court room, new chairs in the main court room and jury room, rewiring of the entire court house, skylights in main courtroom, leaks in both the witness room and jury room, floors in the witness room, leaks in county health office, floors in the office of County Commissioners.

The Grand Jury recommended that the Probate Judge and County Commissioners Court study the cell problem at the county jail. "The existing cells appeared to us to be too small now that prisoners are kept in the county when terms are less than one year," the report said, after naming needed specific repairs at the jail.

The report said that the Welfare building is in excellent condition, and that after examination of the books of the various county officers they seem to be in good order, neatly kept and arranged.

The Grand Jury examined 23 presentments and returned 15 indictments including nine misdemeanors and six felonies. Names of these indicted were withheld pending arrests.

CAR COMPLETE WRECK; NO ONE SERIOUSLY HURT

Four people in an automobile miraculously escaped serious injury when the automobile in which they were riding overturned and was completely wrecked in one of a series of automobile accidents investigated during the past week by the state highway patrol.

An automobile driven by Jerry D. Chancellor, of Rt. 2, Troy, was turning off the Troy highway about 11.3 miles north of Elba Tuesday of last week when it was hit and overturned by a highway passenger bus driven by John F. TIME METERS AT COURT HOUSE HERE OPPOSED

The Coffee County Democratic Executive Committee adopted a resolution unanimously at last week's meeting in opposition to the installation of parking meters about the Coffee County Court House in Elba.

The resolution recites that the city of Elba is installing parking meters in the business district but says that the proposal to install the meters about the court house "be condemned by this committee, and vigorously protested, and that such protest be made to the governing body of Coffee County, that the installation of such parking meters and the compulsory use thereof interfere and restricts the convenience of the facilities afforded by the county to its citizens in the performance of public and private duties."

The resolution was signed by L. R. Kierstead, chairman; J. J. Moore, vice-chairman, and O. V. Rhodes, secretary, on behalf of the entire committee.

Mayor Herschel Taylor was absent, attending a meeting of the REA in Dallas, Texas, and City Clerk Jones was absent due to illness.

More Fuel Used

The 714 degree days recorded last month were 81 per cent higher than the January average for the past ten years. That means fuel consumption last month ran about 81 per cent higher than the average winter in recent years, and heating costs, of course, went right up with fuel consumption.

Figure it any way you want, mean temperature, degree days, or the number of times you've got cold in the night, January 1958 was a chilly month. And whether you burn oil, coal, wood, bottled gas or natural gas, you burned about 80 per cent more of it last month than you did a year ago.

Everybody these days is talking about the high cost of living. But do Southeast Alabamians realize that an important part of this high cost of living is entirely the fault of the weather?

Joe Brown Foster lived in New Town, Elba, and attended Elba Elementary School until the family moved to Columbus six years ago.

Why? A Columbus newspaper said: "Before Columbus Optimist named Joe Foster 'Boy of the Year," the judges had considered why one boy succeeds where another fails. "The answer is not easy to know. One significant clue lies in the fact that Joe likes challenges. 'When I work hard for something, I enjoy it more,' he says. "Joe Brown Foster is a boy to hearten those worried about today's youth, or America's future in the science race.

Looks All-American! He is five feet, eleven, weighs 155, has black hair and brown eyes and easily fits into the "All-American" type. He is interested in girls, so interested in one particular girl he is thinking of marriage. He is a member of the Honor Society. He has played football for the Jordan "B" football team.

CLOSE UP—If this picture comes out it should be one of the closest close-ups in animal photography. The two-week-old fawn was found by an Ontario guide, hungry, lonely and frightened, after its mother had abandoned the tiny creature alongside a Canadian National Railway section worker's house in Algonquin Park, Ont. The rail worker brought the fawn inside where it was fed and then posed before a youngster's camera.

Is he curious?
The world awaits another Edison. He could be your son.

The boy in the scarf is Tom Edison, age 10. He was curious about things, as he built his own laboratory. This month the whole world celebrates his 111th Birthday.

During his lifetime Thomas Alva Edison "lighted the world" with the electric light, reproduced voices and sounds with the phonograph, pioneered in developing movies and radio. Over 1,100 important inventions were his because—like your boy—he simply wanted to know.

Today, many of the achievements of science are being built on the foundations of these inventions. But we are told, one Thomas Edison in a generation is no longer enough to sustain our kind of progress.

The need is for thousands—educated young people, trained to harness their curiosity about the unknown.

What more rewarding and exciting way for your boy to spend his life than to make the progress of humanity and your country his profession?

Right now American industries are trying to encourage the natural curiosity of the young—with assistance in education and training and good-paying jobs, as well. You can be sure your electric light and power company is a part of this very important movement.

We owe a lot to Tom Edison. We salute him on February 11, 1958—Mr. Edison's 111th birthday—and proclaimed as SCIENCE YOUTH DAY by the Governor of Alabama and the governors of other states.

We urge you to help make your son's natural curiosity pay off. If he is a junior or senior in high school, suggest that he talk to the student advisor. If he has a liking for the scientific and engineering field and applies himself during his college years, there should be little doubt about his ability to get a job when he graduates. If funds
